The Overseas Basketball Blueprint: A Guidebook On Starting And Furthering Your Professional Basketball Career Abroad For American-Born Players Dre Baldwin

Since I started my website DreAllDay.com, along with all the YouTube videos, I have received many requests from players on playing pro basketball. And since the NBA has only so many positions, most of you know that overseas ball is a stronger possibility for you to continue your playing career, and it is: The NBA has 450 job positions while there are 10,000 players employed internationally (which includes Canada, Central and South America, which technically do not require going “over a sea” to get to, in case you cared). Over the years I have compiled several guides and tips for players on how to get their careers started, what to expect on the way and once they are in the door, and how to handle themselves with the on and off-court situations that come with it. Every guide comes from questions that players frequently ask me. This guidebook is a compilation of all of those guides and tips in one place for your quick and easy reference, which I will be updating over time as new questions come up and new information arises. It should be noted that several, though not all, of the chapters of this book are based on the posts on the Guides & Tips page of my website, edited and updated for this guidebook — so do not leave me any negative reviews saying, “It’s just the same stuff from his website!” I’m saying here and now that many things are the same, but there is also new stuff in here, and everything is updated to fit the times. And it’s damn ninety-nine cents. Quit your whinin’, make the pros, write a book about it and sell one copy — you’ve made your money back! If you take only one thing from this guidebook, know that professional basketball is a buyer’s market: There are more candidates than there are jobs, so the people who do the hiring — the teams themselves — have the power. What this means for you is, you need to make yourself stand out. Make these coaches, agents, and managers remember you and want to know more. We will cover this within.
