It has been nearly 70 years since one single ripping right uppercut on a summer night in June of 1933 put a giant of a man and his country smack in the annals of boxing history. That was all it took when the underdog challenger Primo Carnera captured the world of sports' biggest prize when he knocked out heavyweight champion Jack Sharkey in round six. Carnera was a great fighter and a noble champion. To this day, he is the only native Italian to ever hold the heavyweight title. That is why in a recent poll of Italian newspapers, Primo Carnera was ranked third out of the ten most illustrious Italians of the 20th Century. The magnitude of the legendary Primo Carnera's impact has still not been forgotten. This book is a new and private portrait of a great champion and a great man (literally, he was 6'8" tall and weighed 265 pounds!). It describes his life from childhood in Italy to the years of emigration and his first sporting experiences in France, to his departure for the United States, a country that gave him fame but that never replaced Italy in the champion's heart.
